Foursquare Properties filed its plans for the redevelopment of Bellevue Center mall today, said Craig Owensby, spokesman for the Metro Planning Department.

The filing is scheduled to go before the Planning Commission at its Oct. 25 meeting, held at 4 p.m. at Metro Southeast, 1417 Murfreesboro Pike., as announced at the Bellevue Middle School community meeting last month.

Owensby said the plans do not include any names of potential tenants.

Foursquare President Jeff Vittek said that once the plans were passed, the company would purchase the mall property within 30 to 45 days.

Detailed plans call for demolition of the current mall, freeing up space for an open-air lifestyle center.

Examples of lifestyle centers around Nashville include Nashville West and The Hill Center.

Anchor stores Macy's and Sears will remain intact and open for business during the redevelopment period, officials say.
